The Coach House

HITCHIN, HERTFORDSHIRE

SOLD

This wonderful Grade II-listed converted coach house lies in a bucolic position on the banks of the River Oughton, adjacent to the beautiful Oughtonhead Nature Reserve. Extending to 2,500 sq ft, the house contains five bedrooms as well as an expansive kitchen and dining room with soaring pitched ceilings, and a first floor living space with leafy views over the nature reserve. The River Oughton, a beautiful chalk stream, runs along the boundary and the mill race runs through the garden.

Setting the Scene

The Coach House is one of five buildings off Westmill Lane, on the outskirts of the village of Ickleford. A thoughtful conversion has preserved the integrity and feel of the old building, celebrating its original features such as the high vaulted ceilings with exposed beams in the living spaces. There are a multitude of windows and skylights that allow light to pour into every room of the house. For more information on the history of The Coach House, please see the History section below.

The Grand Tour

A gravelled road leads to the house, and its two designated parking areas. A pair of floor-to-ceiling glazed doors are found behind wooden coach house doors, which all open into a wide, light-filled hallway. Steps lead down to the large, voluminous living spaces; to the right is the bright, open-plan kitchen and dining room, with wonderfully tall ceilings and windows that overlook the garden. The kitchen is composed of white-painted, Shaker-style cabinetry with granite worktops, set against slate-tiled floors. Just outside the kitchen is a separate utility room, fitted with similar cabinetry; this also provides access to one of the parking areas to the side of the house. There are three bedrooms, one of which is currently used as a study, as well as a family bathroom on this floor.

A staircase leads to the first floor and a beautiful living space, where wooden floorboards run underfoot and a warming wood-burning stove grounds the room. The original beams have been left exposed and there are wonderfully high ceilings; a large picture window floods the room with light. The main bedroom is on this floor, with an en suite bathroom and a balcony framed by ornate, romantic wrought-iron railings. A spiral staircase leads to a further bedroom/study.

The Great Outdoors

The back door opens onto a York stone terrace with a rose and sweet-scented jasmine-covered arbour. The garden, which extends to half an acre, has been organically cultivated during the 15 years the current owners have lived here, with a myriad of flower beds and fruit trees, including espaliered plum, cherry and peach trees, plus a small orchard area of apple, pear and quince, and a vegetable patch.

A winding brick path leads through the garden, along the flower beds and to the vegetable patch at the end. Steps descend to a seating area, which has a lovely view over the water. A bridge leads over the millrace to an island planted with mature native trees, weeping willow and wildflowers; a deliberately wilder part of the garden. The island is bordered by the river on one side and the mill race on the other.

Long-horned cattle graze in the neighbouring nature reserve, and it's possible to sometimes catch sight of the local kingfisher or hear a cuckoo. There are lovely walks in all directions; following the River Oughton through the Nature Reserve or along footpaths through open countryside. Several of these footpaths follow the lines of the ancient chalk path, the Icknield Way, which crosses the country from Dorset to Suffolk. The village of Ickleford takes its name from this path.

Out and About

The Coach House feels wonderfully rural yet is positioned close to the centre of Hitchin. Hitchin is a pretty market town, complete with a beautiful church, in a particularly lovely setting by the river. The old streets are lined with plenty of shops (including a Waitrose), cafes and restaurants. Cambridge, which is a short train or car ride from the house, is famous for its university and college buildings and is home to numerous pubs, shops, parks, a weekly market and the River Cam – perfect for a weekend jaunt.

Equidistant between London and Cambridge, the house is close to excellent transport links. The train from Hitchin takes 30 minutes to King's Cross St Pancras; there are also frequent trains to the City (including to Farringdon and London Bridge), and onwards to Gatwick and Brighton. There are also easy links to the A600, A1 and the M1.
